Managing Sudden Traumatic Loss

A two-day training for those who want to join the Traumatic Loss Coalition as Lead Response Team Members

Despite all efforts to keep children and youth safe and healthy, tragic events happen. When such an event occurs, it is imperative that there is a planned postvention response and trained crisis responders. The response can either promote resiliency or hinder healing.

The purpose of this training is to learn skills, recognize resources within the community, promote a framework for organizing reactions in the aftermath, and suggest practical strategies for management to reduce the negative impact of these events on youth and those who are associated with them.
